

THE CONNECTOR

NAME:

DATE:

YOUR ROLE

As the connector, your role is to reflect on the text and share connections that you have made while reading the article. You will include text-to-self, text-to-world, and text-to-text connections.

You may not always have a direct personal connection to the issue or topic at hand, but this is where you need to read between the lines and use your inferencing skills to see what you can connect with.

TEXT-TO-SELF

What connections can you make with your own life? Consider:

- Personal experiences (e.g., events, family history, feelings)
- Culture (e.g., background... do the characters in the book share the same norms and background/cultural practices?)
- Values and beliefs (e.g., do you value or believe in the same things as any of the characters in the story?)

TEXT-TO-TEXT

What connections can you make with other books or articles you have read? Consider:

- Other novels (themes, character similarities, plot similarities)
- Articles, news, non-fiction text
- Short-form or more informal content (e.g., blogs, social media captions, tweets, YouTube videos, ads)

TEXT-TO-WORLD

What connections can you make to other events in the world? Consider:

- Current norms
- Cultural norms
- Biases, stereotypes or prejudice
- Historical events

Remember, the more you read between the lines, the easier it will be for you to connect to a story. You may not have the same experience to relate to, but once you find the broader theme, you will be able to find connections.

THE CONNECTOR

NAME: _____

DATE: _____

TEXT TO SELF

- Personal experiences
- Culture and norms
- Values and beliefs

TEXT TO TEXT

- Other novels, articles, or non-fiction texts
- Short-form or more informal content

TEXT TO WORLD

- Current and/or historical events
- Biases, stereotypes, or prejudice
